Activities to help your child learn to read common exception words:

1. Choose up to 10 words at a time. Write them on squares of paper and play pairs with them.
2. Make flashcards and read at speed.
3. Write them on paper and hide them around the house. See how many common exception words they can find and read.
4. Write a sentence with them in and ask your child to hunt for the word. Once they have found it, can they read the whole sentence?

Activities to help your children spell common exception words:

1. Read it, copy it, cover it and write it!
2. Think of a sentence with the word in and support your child to write the sentence.
3. Your children love spelling tests! They are always asking me if we are having one this week. Pick a few words each day and do a mini test.

Once your child is confident at reading a word, highlight it so they can see how many words they have been learning.

Phonics

Here are all of the sounds we have been learning in phonics. Please use these daily. Cut out all of the sounds and use as flashcards, asking your child to say the sound. We like to make it fun by seeing how quickly we can say all of the sounds and then try to beat our time!

If your child struggles, or doesn't know a sound on sight then put it back into the pack and repeat learning with it until they are fluent at reading all of the sounds.

Choose a couple of sounds a day and think of as many words that contain these sounds as you can. Ask your child to sound out and write the words. Choose a couple of your words and write sentences with them in. Remind your child that they need a capital letter, full stops, finger spaces, red words and Fred fingers (they will understand what all of this means).

Here is an Obb and Bob game. Please only play with up to 10 words at a time. Mix them up and use the ones that contain sounds you have been focusing on when you have used your flashcards.

To play, your child has to use their phonics to sound out the words. Once they have read the word, they decide if it is a real or a nonsense word. Obb eats the nonsense words and Bob eats the real words. When you have played it a few times, why not make some of your own words up too!!
